The State vs. F. Patterson—Preliminary Examination.

The following testimony was introduced for the Defense:

S. N. Arrigoni—I am proprietor of the Pioneer Hotel; was there on the night of the shooting; about two o'clock was in bed; heard some firing; jumped up and found at my room door the private watchman; he told me there was firing; came out into the hall and met a waiter who told me they would [illegible]; at the foot of the stairs I met Patterson and a man named Taylor. I asked Patterson what was the matter; he said a mob was after him, going to kill him. I said you retire to your room or run away, but don't commit a murder in my house; he replied he would harm no one, but he was not going to be mobbed; I told him to desist, and believe me to be a friend of his and I would see everything settled; I wanted no mob or noise in my house; he said if I would go down and get the mob to retire he would go to his room, otherwise he would shoot any one that came up stairs; I told him to retreat and go to his room, meant me; I went down stairs and about three feet from the foot of the stairs saw the crowd. I told them to retreat, they having no right to come into my premises to commit any violence; one individual reached over the crowd and took hold of me; I took hold of him and asked him what he was going to do; he replied to stand by, I was going to kill that secessionist son of a b—h, and you are a sympathiser with him; I said it made no difference to me what he thought; in the meantime the crowd cryed "we will go up and shoot the son of a b—h;" I know the individual; every one was asking for pistols, but they had them in their hands; the most of these were afraid to use them; I told them not to go up stairs as the first man that did would be killed; they said they would go and did; I told them to go to h—ll; I then went to the saloon to look after my own affairs; after I got to the saloon I heard the firing on the second landing. Capt. Dodge was the man who caught me and was the most clamorous of the crowd; neither Staples nor Dodge stopped at my house; Patterson did.

Cross-examined—Heard firing in bed; two shots; met Patterson and Taylor at the head of the first flight of stairs; spoke to them about two minutes; advised him to go to his room; he went to his room; he said he would not run away from any one; Patterson had a pistol in his hand, commanding the mob not to come up; did not see Taylor with a pistol; going down met the crowd about three feet from the stairs; Staples and DeWitt had pistols, he thought Frenchy had one also; one of the crowd suggested that the bells be rung so as to raise a crowd; the crowd did not like to attempt going up stairs because they did not have pistols enough; some of them suggested the putting out the gas; did not see Staples till after he was shot; saw Mr. Whitehouse before the fight occurred, between the second and third stories.

A. M. Starr—[For the prosecution.]—Arrested the prisoner about two o'clock; found him in the privy on the second story balcony; looked for him in the third story; some one came to my room about two o'clock saying there was the devil of a row; I got up and was partly dressed when the fire bells rung. I went up stairs to look for the prisoner; asked Dennison to go up and identify the prisoner; he refused, and I then asked Capt. Hustler to go with me; he also refused, but told me that when he last heard of the prisoner he was on the balcony; we went up stairs to that point and found him, when he delivered up his pistol—a large navy Colt, with five chambers discharged.

Charles Stone—Was at the Bank Exchange when the difficulty occurred between Dodge and Patterson; I heard some one say something about Secessionists; when I saw Patterson strike Dodge, they then went to opposite ends of the counter and commenced throwing glasses at each other. Capt. Staples then came in and caught Patterson by the collar and asked him what he was throwing glasses for? Patterson replied that he was not throwing at him; he did not want to have anything to do with him; they forced him into the back room, when I heard some one call him a "damned secessionist," while others cryed out "kill him." I then opened the back door when he ran out and went on the wharf. I caught hold of the door and shut it. I then went back to the bar room, and afterwards went to see if he had got away; he said his hat was in the bar room; I got it and gave it to him; some of the crowd asked me "what in hell I let him out for?" I saw no more of the affair that evening; it was about one or half past one o'clock when this took place. I heard shots at the Pioneer about fifteen minutes afterward.

Cross-examination—Was at the Pioneer door at the time of the shooting; did not see Patterson; supposed the prisoner threw the tumblers at Dodge; am not sure that Staples was in the bar at the time of the throwing of the tumblers; the crowd was composed of some twenty or thirty persons; Staples caught Patterson by the collar, saying "what in hell are you throwing those glasses for?" The back room was dark, and not see any one lay hands on the prisoner; Dodge and one named Brown cried "kill him" when Patterson was cornered in the back room, following him up at the same time. It might have been two minutes that Patterson was cornered up in the back door when I let him out; there were two doors in the room; the crowd did not know which one he escaped by; when I came back the crowd were looking for him through the rooms.

Thomas Scully—Was at the Bank Exchange on the night in question; saw Mr. Dodge enter into conversation with Patterson; a few moments afterwards heard a scuffle; when I turned around and saw Patterson strike Dodge with a cane; they then threw glasses at each other, Dodge crying out he is a secessionist; Patterson said they should not question his sentiments; some sang out "he is a secessionist, kill him;" some of them caught hold of Patterson and backed him up towards the next room, when he finally escaped through the back door; after Patterson left, Dodge went into the next room with a decanter, looking for him; he came back inquiring for the person who let him out. Andrews, also, wanted to know who let him out? said that he was a secessionist and should be hung; two or three stepped inside the bar and demanded of the bar-keeper if he let him out; was not at the Pioneer Hotel when the shooting took place.

Cross-examined—No one else but Dodge and Patterson threw tumblers; saw Capt. Staples at the Bank Exchange; did not notice him at the time the tumblers were being thrown; some of the crowd had hold of Patterson; Andrews also had hold of him; some of the crowd followed Patterson after he had escaped from the door; saw Stone with some four or five men around him crowding closely; this occurred between the hours of one and two o'clock; the firing at the Pioneer Hotel took place about three quarters of an hour after the affair at the Bank Exchange; heard several shots and saw the flame from my room, in the Columbian Hotel, opposite.

Isaac Wagner—Was at the Bank Exchange on the night of the difficulty; did not see it; was at the Pioneer Hotel on that evening; saw Dodge and Patterson there; I went in and saw Patterson sitting down—Dodge was there walking around rather on the fight. DeWitt Andrews and others were also there; heard Dodge say that Patterson had struck him with a cane and he wanted to fight him; said he would make a ring and fight him a fist fight. Patterson replied "he did not fight in that way, he did not wish any fuss, he would see him to-morrow if he wished to see him;" do not remember Patterson saying any more. Dodge abused and cursed him—I think he called him a son of a b——; Patterson made no reply; Patterson remained sitting—Dodge within a few feet of him; saw Capt. Staples when he came in; Patterson was still sitting; when Patterson left the room, heard the crowd rush towards the hall door crying "catch him, arrest him;" Dodge and Brown he heard crying this; saw Brown following him to the door; the crowd rushed with rapidity towards the door; after the rush I heard a shot not more than three minutes afterwards; the crowd were excited against Patterson. I went into the hall but saw nothing of Patterson. I heard four or five shots fired; saw no shots fired from the hall; saw nothing that took place after the crowd left the first floor.

Cross examined—Capt. Staples came in while Dodge and Patterson were talking; the man came in with him; they were in about two minutes when Patterson left; did not hear anyone speak to Patterson except Dodge; four shots were fired before I went into the hall. DeWitt was at the foot of the stairs when I went into the hall. Dodge and Brown cried "kill him;" previous to the first shot did not see Staples in the hall at all.

Col. White—Was at the Bank Exchange when the difficulty occurred between Dodge and Patterson; they were talking about secession and union. Dodge remarked "I suppose you are a secessionist." Patterson said "I don't want to talk with you on that subject." Dodge remarked afterwards that he was a d——d good Union man. Patterson said "you can shove your Union up ——." Dodge retorted with the same expression, substituting the word secession for Union. Patterson then struck Dodge with his fist, repeating the blow with his cane. What happened afterwards I do not know, as I considered that no place for me.

Cross-examined—Went down to the steamer; stayed about fifteen minutes and returned to the Pioneer Hotel; saw Dodge and Patterson there talking; do not know what they said; Staples, Dodge, and Patterson got into conversation together. I thought he heard Staples say something about a fair fight; saw Patterson go towards the division wall and run up the right hand [illegible]; just before he reached the door Staples, Dodge and others started quickly after him, going through the [illegible] into the hall; in a short time after this heard three or four shots, followed by the cry "catch him." I was in the bar room and left immediately after the first shots, not liking to run the risk of being shot.

The attorneys for the defense here rested the case. The hour being late the Court adjourned until this morning at ten o'clock, when the case will be summed up.

The Court met on Saturday morning at ten o'clock, and heard the arguments of the counsel in the case, Messrs. Mitchell and Page for the State and Mr. Logan for the defendant; after which the Court decided to admit the prisoner to bail in the sum of $15,000—in default of which he was remanded to prison to await his trial at the next Circuit Court.

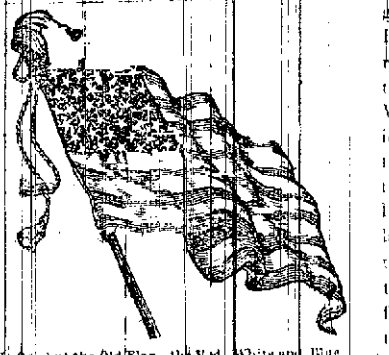
OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.



No flag but the Old Flag—the Red, White and Blue
With the stars of a Union unbroken and true;
Arise and defend it, ye sons of the brave,
Whose blood bought the banner [illegible] valor must save.

MONDAY MORNING, OCT. 21, 1861.

Daniel S. Dickinson.

Our readers have knowledge of this man. He is a Democratic leader of the great State of New York. He is now the candidate of the Union party for Attorney General of that State. Mr. Dickinson understands the character and objects of that set of men in the free States, who denounce Lincoln for unconstitutional acts to sustain the government, but had not a word to say against those who have raised a rebellion in the South to destroy it. In a late speech in Pennsylvania Mr. Dickinson said:

"When my Democratic or Republican friends," "or any other men," are disposed to call the President to account, and I am not his defender, I only beg, when they get through with him, they will merely inquire whether Mr. Jeff. Davis & Co. have gone strictly according to the Constitution of the United States? [Cheers and laughter.] I have the impression that instituting a pretended government within the boundaries of the United States; that stealing the treasures of our Government, its ships; betraying its commands; firing upon its fortifications; organizing piracy upon the high seas and a long list of other and kindred acts—I have the impression, I say, that these are slight infringements upon the Constitution, and may require examination. [Laughter.] But I want to have my Constitutional friends come along with me, and when they get the Administration all regulated and on the constitutional track, to look at this matter a little, for it seems to me that it requires attention."

But the "any other men" have no time or words to spend upon the constitutional acts of the rebels in the South. Indeed, such men as him of the Advertiser say they "sympathize with them." Their patriotism does not enable them to spend their valuable thoughts for any time in that direction.

Mr. Dickinson says he is in favor of peace, as every other patriotic citizen is. And how? He says:

"I am in favor of peace, but I am in favor of the only course that will insure it—driving out armed rebellion, negotiating with royalty. When this country commences to die, it will die rapidly. When this nation is given up to disruption, it will go to swift destruction. Rome, to be sure, was three hundred years dying; but then its physical powers were greater than ours, its moral forces less, its nervous energy less acute than ours. When we fall we shall go down in blood and darkness; but not in tears, for the dying never weep. Nero, the last and worst of the Cæsars, sung to his harp while his capital was in flames. Tamerlane, to signalize his brutal ferocity, reared a monument of seventy thousand human skulls—Attila declared that the grass should never grow where the hoof of his war horse trod. Hyder Ali left the Carnatic black with ashes and desolation; but he who destroys the American Union will be a greater than all or either."

MATTERS AT WASHINGTON.—A correspondent of the Sacramento Union under date of Sept. 21st, writes:

We shall have no fight with the rebel host which tried to menace Washington until we make it. The Confederates are in a deplorable condition, and the egregious military blunder they have committed in [illegible] all their disposable forces upon the extreme verge of their territory, while our navies are sweeping at their unprotected coasts, cannot now be remedied. An attack upon our lines is entirely out of the question; and [illegible] the rebels when they try to go backward from McClellan. Rosencranz is slowly forcing his way down the Valley of Western Virginia, and by the time our fleets and naval transports—which are even now en route—begin to strike the Southern shores the original plan of General Scott may be accomplished and the retreat of the army of Washington be cut off.

Flag Officer Stribling and Commander Radford, of the Chinese Naval force, ordered to report at Washington, had arrived at San Francisco, and took the overland route to that city.

The wife of Gen. McClellan was, three years ago, Miss Nellie Marcy, a lady well known in Hartford, and daughter of Randolph Marcy, of the army, recently appointed to be Inspector-General.

THE SALMON RIVER GOLD MINES.

The boundless riches of the Salmon River Gold Mines, are to be fully realized. Neither California or Cariboo ever presented such gold prospects as are now found on Salmon River. The facts in regard to the mineral riches there, which come to us from authentic sources, are absolutely bewildering. What are the certain results of these discoveries? Tremendous stampedes from California to the mines,—a flood of overland emigration,—a vastly increased business on the Columbia river,—the rapid advance of Portland in business, population and wealth,—the profitable employment of the farmers of this valley;—these results are as certain to follow these great gold discoveries as Day is to follow Night.

We select the following from several communications on hand. Every word of it is truth.

MILLERSBURG, W. T., Oct. 5, 1861.

Editor Oregonian:

The Salmon River mines, which are now attracting the attention of miners, traders and business men generally in this upper country, are located on some small streams and gulches, coming out of a western spur of Bitter Root Mountains, and running into the main stream, distant from fifteen to twenty miles. They are about seventy-five miles from Lewiston, in a south eastern course; about one hundred and twenty-five miles south from Oro Fino, and nearly seventy-five miles from Elk City.

The discovery of these mines was first made by a prospecting party of twenty-three men, who left Oro Fino in the early part of July last, for a tour up Salmon River. They prospected on the bars of this river for a distance of perhaps one hundred miles, with flattering results. When satisfied that good paying mines had been found, they followed the river down, and when opposite this, they were determined on finding a near route to Elk City, for the purpose of obtaining provisions, which by this time had become a scarce article with them. When they reached this place, the party separated, nine of them remaining behind to hunt and to find an easy route through the almost impassable masses of dead timber, which lay in the way. Two of the company, while laying in camp, made a wager between them that the "color" could not be "raised" in this miserable looking country. The wager was won by the prospector obtaining from a pan of dirt, taken from beneath the roots of an up-turned tree, the sum of "five cents." The party then prospected several creeks and gulches in the immediate vicinity, obtaining five, ten, twenty-five and even seventy-five cents to every pan of dirt washed. Satisfied even better with this than the "diggings" on the main river, they followed the other party out, having to [illegible] upon horse flesh before getting to where provisions could be had. After recruiting a short time, they purchased a supply of tools, provisions, etc., necessary for a four weeks stay, and returned, closely followed by some six or seven others to this land of "golden promise."

After their return, prospecting was resumed in real earnest, and all here are now satisfied that these will prove the richest and most extensive mines yet found north of California. All [illegible] that the center of the [illegible] has as yet been found, and [illegible] the Oro Fino and South Fork diggings, are on the outer edge.

Only a radius of about five miles has yet been prospected, yet all the gulches, ravines and creeks inside of this will pay well for working. Miller's creek is perhaps the richest. From the first pan of dirt washed taken out of the [illegible] in this creek, $27 was obtained. Miller [illegible] with the pan that gave him $27. Claims were immediately staked off on this creek, and the party went to work. Each claim has uniformly paid the holders from $25 to $100 per day to the hand. Baboon Gulch is also very rich. I have seen $75 washed out in ten hours by one man, with the pan alone. Nason's Gulch pays well. Five men have just cleaned up $700, the result of ten days work with one rocker in this gulch. Hills' Gulch, Smith's Gulch, Pigeon Gulch, and Hurley's Creek will each pay at least three ounces to the hand.

There are at the present time about 200 men here. Provisions are not to be had at any price. Parties are now waiting on [illegible]. It will require about three hundred pounds of flour for each man, this winter. The [illegible] is good over fifty miles of trail, [illegible]. Pack trains can get in here until the 20th of November, easily.

We expect a large acceleration to our number here from Elk City and Oro Fino, soon. A town has been laid out, [illegible] heads this letter.

CLAIM FOR REWARD.—The Advertiser claims a reward for the expression of loyal sentiments. This wonderful exhibition of loyalty on its part is found in these words: "In our mind, John Mitchell is a rebel yet." It is the nearest approach to a patriotic sentiment which has been discovered in the Advertiser. We award the author a copy of the last coinage—its full value.

It is reported that the revenue cutter Jeff. Davis has seized the brig Sunny South, in the Sound. She is partly owned in the South.

FORTRESS MONROE, Oct. 9th.—The frigate Susquehanna has arrived from Hatteras Inlet. It brings most interesting intelligence. The day after the capture of the propeller Fanny by the rebels, the steamer [illegible] and Putnam, having one of the launches of the Susquehanna in tow, went up the [illegible] and landed seven days provisions, returning the same evening without having seen anything of the rebels.

On Friday news came from Hatteras Inlet by the steamer Stars and Stripes, that 2500 rebels, consisting of Georgia, South Carolina and Virginia regiments, had come over from the main land in six small steamers, schooners and flat boats, and attacked the 13th Indiana regiment, who were obliged to retreat. The Susquehanna steamed up outside, while Col. Hawkins marched up with six companies and reached Hatteras light by nightfall.

During the night Col. Hawkins was joined by the 13th Indiana regiment, who had passed in darkness a large body of rebels, who had landed for the purpose of cutting them off.

Col. Brown reported a loss of fifty of his men, comprising the sick and wounded, and twenty pickets, who could not be called in. He succeeded in saving his 10th provisional.

On Saturday morning the Monticello steamed round the Cape, and a few miles up met rebels marching down a narrow neck of land to attack our troops. The rebel steamers were also landing troops to co-operate with them.

They were within easy range and the Monticello poured on them with shells, firing [illegible] shots and doing great damage. A shell passed through the wheel house of the Fanny rebel. It is thought their loss must have reached between two and three hundred, killed and wounded, during the engagement.

A member of the Indiana regiment who was taken prisoner, managed to escape. He took to the surf and was picked up by a boat from the Monticello. He reports that the first shell killed Col. Barton of the Georgia regiment, and that the havoc was terrible.

Lieut. Broadhead, from whom the above information is obtained, thinks that no damage can be done in the Inlet without the aid of a fleet of light-draught vessels. He thinks our forces at the Inlet should be largely increased.

The Spaulding arrived at the Inlet on the 7th with Gen. Mansfield, and landed his men and stores.

Too much praise cannot be accorded to the commander of the brilliant achievement which has caused great exultation at Old Point.

Col. Brown narrowly escaped with the Indiana regiment from Confederate vessels and troops, which were landed above and below him. He managed to retreat with small loss.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8th.—The baloon which was seen over Washington a few days ago proves to be La Mountain's which safely landed in Maryland. It appears that after reaching a certain altitude, and finding the current right he cut the rope and rose to the height of three miles, obtaining a complete view of the rebel encampment and movements, which important news he has communicated to the war department.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7th.—The Tribune's dispatch says the main body of the rebels is at Fairfax Court House, whence a broad belt of encampment stretches, and seen by our balloons, stretching westwards towards Leesburg, where there are nearly 30,000 men. On the Lower Potomac there are about 12,000 [illegible] to Manassas.

WASHINGTON, Oct. [illegible]—Yesterday Capt. [illegible] General Banks' [illegible] picket duty on the [illegible] a short distance [illegible] accompanied [illegible]. They were suddenly surrounded by a [illegible] rebels who commenced [illegible]. Capt. Lingenfelter and his [illegible] the rebels with their [illegible] a rebel bullet killed him [illegible].

CITY.

COMMON COUNCIL.—Council met Friday evening, October 18, 1861. Present—Messrs. Harbaugh, Hall, King, Masters, White, Hallock, and Scott. Mr. White was elected President pro tem.

A petition from sundry citizens was received praying the Council to construct a substantial bridge over the ravine leading through at the intersection of Hall and Water streets, which was read to the Council.

Report of the Finance Committee on the City Treasurer's Report ending Sept. 30th, was read and ordered filed.

The following bills were ordered paid: H. L. Pittock, $14; Wm. Grooms, $8 50; O. R. S[illegible], $17; A. B. Hallock, $27 30; Wm. Grooms, (board for prisoners) $17 50; Portland Gas Company, $165. The bill of W. Dalton, $22 50, for painting Engine House No. 2, was referred to Committee on fire and water.

The resolution to pay H. W. Davis $213 75 was taken from the table, read, and adopted.

The report of the City Surveyor, relative to the sewer on the public square, was read and laid on the table.

A resolution appropriating the sum of $200 for the construction of a bridge at the intersection of Hall and Water streets, was read and laid over under the rule.

A resolution that a committee be appointed to inquire into and report to the Common Council the necessity of organizing a Police force, was adopted. Messrs. King, Harbaugh and Hallock on said committee.

As Mr. Abrams and family were returning to the city in a carriage, from the country, he stopped at the house of Mr. Kincarson, on the Clackamas, to feed his horses. He unbridled them without hitching, and turned to go into the barn, when the horses took fright and started on a run down an embankment—the family still in the carriage. Mr. Abrams caught the harness of one of them, and was thrown down, both wheels running over him. The carriage was upset and the family thrown out, but without being injured. Mr. A. was considerably bruised about the face and breast.

ARRIVAL OF THE W. G. HUNT.—The steamer W. G. Hunt left Victoria Oct. 15th; arrived at Neah Bay same evening; remained there till Friday 18th; left at half-past eleven A. M.; crossed Columbia River Bar at 6 A. M., 19th, and arrived at Portland 7 P. M., 20th.
